

Rollover Changes

At the end of the plan year, you may allow a Rollover in which participants may move a portion of their unused account balances to the next plan year, even if the participant did not re-enroll in the plan. Any unused funds (exceeding the rollover maximum) are forfeited to the employer.

Rollover occurs after the transition Period (claims runout period) end date. During the runout period, participants in past and current plan years may request reimbursements from both respective plan years.

Why should you consider making a change?

The COVID-19 crisis has drastically changed the medical landscape and thus the medical care needs of the employee. The crisis has made it difficult for some participants to contact or engage with service providers, thereby making it hard for them to use their benefit dollars. By implementing or increasing the rollover amount, participants will get a fair chance to use their benefit dollars.

Things to Know:

- Increasing or implementing a rollover is allowed
 - Changes to rollover may require a two-week notice
Due to high demand for plan changes, administrators may require a two-week notice before extending or implementing a rollover.
 - Rollover does not apply to all accounts
Rollover is not used in conjunction with accounts that have grace period. Rollover is commonly used for Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRAs).
- Consider the following rollover need:
- Employee has leftover HRA funds they couldn't spend due to stay-at-home mandates and quarantines.
 - Implementing a rollover allows employees to use their leftover funds into the next plan year.

Why TASC?

For more than 40 years, TASC has been a leader, an innovator, and a partner of employers committed to ensuring the health, wealth and well-being of their employees and their employees' families and community. TASC was a pioneer in assisting sole-proprietor farmers and small businesses save billions in tax dollars through the adoption of health reimbursement plans; challenging many ill-informed IRS auditors, accountants, and naysayers along the way. TASC, through FlexSystem, brought the idea of a Cafeteria Plans to large and small businesses; challenging the notion that such plans were burdensome, complicated and difficult to administer.

There from the beginning of Section 125, TASC has brought its knowledge and expertise forward with the idea that together we can improve lives of many, strengthen our communities, and make benefits feel like benefits. TASC understands that each employers circumstance is different. TASC offers its guidance based upon the wealth of its experience as an employer and as a benefits administrator. It is not legal or tax advice and should not be taken as such but is offered to prompt knowledgeable inquiry of your plan professionals and provoke thoughtful plan decision making.

TASC provides its clients with an audit guarantee with respect to serviced tax advantaged accounts. Subject to certain conditions and restrictions, this guarantee provides that in the event a client suffers an adverse finding by the IRS or Department of Labor, despite following TASC's plans and procedures, resulting in interest charges and/or assessed penalties, such interest and penalties will be covered by the guarantee.
